In North Dakota the Republican ticket carried by 8,000 majority. Prohibition defeated by 6,000.

In South Dakota the Republicans made a clean sweep with a majority of 20,000. Prohibition carried by 10,000 majority.

The result of Monday's election will be good for a hundred thousand additional population in Washington during the present winter.

Dispatches from several points report a terrific storm on Lakes Erie and Huron Oct. 7. Many schooners are believed to have been lost, and it is feared that when reports are all in there will be found many sailors lost.

The democrats may have lost an eye or two and an ear and a piece of the nose. Their teeth may be all gone and their collar bone broken, but you ought to just see the other fellows—the prohibitionists and the woman suffragists. Whew!

An Eastern Washington dispatch of recent date says a large consignment of Eureka Flats wheat was started from Walla Walla for Sicily, Italy, recently, to be used in the manufacture of macaroni. Experiments prove the quality of macaroni produced is superior to that of any other wheat used.

A Jamboree dispatch of Oct. 4th says the old Hatfield McCoy feud has broken out again. Pete McCoy's daughter was to marry John Hanley, a relative of the Hatfields. The members of both factions swore to prevent it. Tuesday night, as they stood up to be married, a volley was poured in on them, killing the bride and groom and fatally wounding the preacher.

Members of congress are beginning to congregate in Washington. Southern members expect a long struggle over the organization of the house, and those who are particularly desirous of taking a leading hand in the game are early upon the ground plotting and maturing plans. Whether they will be able to carry them out remains to be seen after the clans have fully gathered.

Now that the election is over the next interesting fight is for two United States senators from Washington, to be appointed by the legislature. One from Western Washington and one from Eastern Washington. John R. Allen and Thos. H. Brents are the most conspicuous candidates east of the Cascades, although Turner and Moore, of Spokane Falls, are spoken of. In Western Washington Watson C. Squire, of Seattle, and Walter J. Thompson, of Tacoma, are in the lead.

Votes were cast in Washington on the question of capital location for Yakima and North Yakima, and the question now arises, shall these votes all be counted for the town of North Yakima, or not? North Yakima herself will of course, count them that way, but Ellensburg demands that the votes be divided between the two towns, for according to the postal guide these are two separate towns. Such a division of North Yakima's strength would place Ellensburg second in the race, and for this empty honor all this fuss is raised.

A dispatch from Mexico on Oct. 5th says that a cyclone occurred on Carmen Island off the coast of Campeche on the 15th ult. Only one vessel out of thirty-five weathered the gale. All the schooners that sought refuge at Quintelle were also wrecked. The loss in the city is $500,000. The ruins are being overhauled for dead bodies. News of great destruction in other cities near Carmen is being received. Houses have been demolished and crops laid low. The loss will not fall short of $1,000,000.

The political cyclone has passed. The people of all political creeds, faiths and isms have resumed their normal condition. A great many democraticships have been dismantled and foundered, driven ashore and on sunken reefs. The tempest rose high during the past thirty days, but it has died away on the sea of humanity, and nothing but an occasional "cat's paw" in the shape of a defeated candidate or disappointed newspaper, breaks the calm. The sky is clear, and the sunshine of peace over-spreads the beautiful State of Washington.—Seattle Budget.

The election is over, the constitution adopted and the Secretary, Governor and Chief Justice of the territory will canvass the returns without delay and certify the same to the President. He will issue his proclamation declaring the state in the union. The state government will go into operation on the Monday following the proclamation. This is likely to be as early as the 4th of November. It will then be the duty of Gov. Ferry to convene the legislature at the earliest practical moment, that the U. S. Senators may be elected in time to take their seats when Congress convenes.

A fire occurred at Nevada, Cal., on Saturday morning last. Loss $40,500, insurance $11,500.

The harvest in the Inland Empire, now that the grain is threshed, is much better than expected. There is no denying the fact that this has been the driest season ever experienced, but the crop is far from being a failure. This has never happened before, and, very probably, will never happen again.

Returns on the capital question are now sufficiently complete to show that Olympia came remarkably near gaining an absolute victory. As it is, she far outstrips any single competitor. In round numbers, 22,000 votes were cast for Olympia, against 12,000 for Yakima and 10,000 for Ellensburg, and it is probable that Olympia would have won had it not been for the casting of 1716 scattering votes.

An exchange says: "The largest bar of gold ever cast in the world was turned out at the United States assay office in Helena, Montana, the other day. It weighed 500 pounds, and is worth a little over $100,000." In 1853 the North Bloomfield hydraulic mine in Nevada county, California, cast $517,000 in one brick. It was the result of a twenty days' run in the mine. This same brick was on exhibition several days at the California in San Francisco.

The voluntary constitutional convention of New Mexico has completed its work, and congress will be asked during the coming session to pass a bill admitting it to statehood. Nothing is so indicative of the growth of the Union as the rapidity with which territories are shaking off provincialism, and filling up with worthy settlers and intelligent citizens. Within the lifetime of many now living there will be no territory in the whole Union.

Human short-sightedness is again forcibly revealed in the late Quebec disaster. According to the city engineers, the danger to which that part of the town was exposed was reported in 1880, that work costing $27,000 was suggested to make the locality safe. Great destruction of property and loss of life shows that it was false economy to save that money. Men are slow to learn these things, although the teachings of experience are terrible in their results.

The Hon. T. L. Stiles left Sunday night for Tucson, A. T., to demand an immediate hearing of the case against him. He anticipates that there will be no effort made to sustain the charges preferred against him by the Greaser grand jury of Tucson, and that two weeks will settle the entire business. He is attorney for the Mexican, Samalago, the man who is quoted as preferring the charges, and has only recently secured a judgment for him against the United States for $13,000.

The republicans have every reason to be gratified at the result of the elections that took place in the new states last Tuesday. The congressional and state legislative ticket was carried for the republicans by large majorities in Washington, North and South Dakota, while in Montana the republicans elect the congressman, and the democrats will probably have the governorship. The legislature is still in doubt, both parties claiming a small majority on joint ballot, but it will not be surprising if, upon receipt of the complete returns, the democrats will be given the prize. Montana has been regarded as an extremely doubtful state by the republicans, and, in fact, there were not a few who were willing to concede it to the democracy. Consequently the election of Carter, the republican candidate, to congress is a matter of congratulation. His election will strengthen the republicans in the lower house of congress, and consequently there need be no fears but the republicans will be able to organize the house all right at the opening of the next session. While we would be glad to have made a clean sweep in Montana, the result will be accepted as satisfactory, for the republicans could more safely spare the entire state and legislative ticket than the one congressman. Montana will probably send two democratic United States senators to Washington, but they will only swell a very heavy minority, and will consequently be valueless, politically considered. The state of Washington has given Wilson, the republican nominee for congress, a majority of about 3000. Not a democrat state officer has been elected, and the democracy will secure probably not more than one senator and six representatives in the first legislature.

Washington, North and South Dakota have declared themselves to be strongly republican, and, from the majorities given, the democrats can hardly hope to ever secure them. The parties are about equally divided in Montana, with chances for future permanent supremacy in favor of the republicans.

The United States steamer Rush arrived at Port Townsend last Thursday from Sitka. Of the fleet of thirty-five vessels in Behring sea, the Rush intercepted twenty-one and seized six, five of which were British schooners from Victoria, and one an American-Indian schooner of Townsend. All of the seized vessels were ordered to Sitka. Each British vessel was placed in charge of one seaman, all of which vessels, notwithstanding the protests of the officer in charge, proceeded to Victoria, and in some instances even killed seals in Behring sea while bound south.

If our temperance friends, who are laboring for the closing of the saloon, ever meet with success, it will be after they have invented something to take the place of the saloon. Men do not go to the saloon because they want to be drunkards, or gamblers, or spendthrifts, or disturbers of the peace; nor are all frequenters of saloons such characters by any means. Now, we deny none of the evil influences of the saloon, but in our belief the saloon will not go until something is brought forward to take its place. Our earnest and good friends of the W. C. T. U. are introducing reading rooms—very good, but only a slight remedy. To reach the great class of saloon visitors, you must offer them more than newspapers and coffee. You must have convenient and pleasant rooms, with no special boastful pretension of changing any man's habits, but pleasant, free and easy rooms, with papers, magazines, pictures, coffee and some articles of food, billiards, nine-pins, and gymnastic appliances, and the best of music; all at a small expense, but still, at least partially paid for by the participants, that they may feel that the enjoyments of the place are theirs, paid for by them, and not a charity; and your rooms will be crowded, and the saloons close by shut out for want of patronage. These rooms must not be pretensions; not too fine for the poor man in his laboring clothes nor must there be too much apparent regulation about them. They must be free and easy, to catch the class of men you want to save. What if our prohibition friends would take a portion of their yearly campaign fund and devote it to trying an experiment of this kind, in some of our cities. Place a popular man, a man of tact, at the head. Secure a piano, and some young man who can play it well. Another man who can handle a fiddle with dexterity, and also singing the popular ballads of the day. Start a few such institutions in any city, and within a month you shall have at these new rooms two-thirds of the present attendants at the saloons. Here is promising work for the friends of temperance to which no man can object.—Boise Statesman.

It was long enough.

Colonel—Well, what's the matter now?
Private—I've got liver trouble and dyspepsia, and ought to get leave for thirty days.
Colonel—I'll give you ten, and if you take Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla that will be long enough.
Fred H. Bickler of 10 Montgomery street, San Francisco, writes: I have spent many a dollar for medicine, but the only thing that ever stopped my liver trouble and dyspepsia was Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla.
Gustav Solomon of 223 Valencia street, San Francisco, writes that he has utterly freed him of his indigestion and sick headache.

The people of Chicago are determined to secure the World's fair in 1892, and if grit and energy will avail anything, New York's chances are very slim. The Western city has decided to raise $10,000,000 for the fair, and will raise it, too.

Picture of the Terrible Storm.
The fearful cyclone storm which recently devastated the Atlantic coast, is pictured in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, this week with wonderful accuracy and striking force. In all ten pictures are shown, forming the leading feature of the paper, the week. A. W. Tourgee, the distinguished novelist contributes the leading editorial article. It is a trenchant review of the race question in the South.

A dispatch from Helena, Montana, says half has not been told of the ravages of drought and fire this season in Montana. Long continued dry weather and prairie fires left the grazing lands in such a condition that cattle cannot obtain proper sustenance from them. The cattle are already in a very poor condition, and if there should come a hard winter many will perish. Stockmen recognize this fact and are shipping stock to the market or driving them to the British possessions. Cattlemen from Iowa are there buying thousands of sheep at low figures.

The Steamer Corona, of the Ouachita Consolidated line, last Thursday exploded her boilers at Falsbet river causing the loss of the steamer, and about forty lives.
