19 I. INTRODUCTION

20 The attempt of plaintiffs in this case to initiate basic 21 discovery approximately seven months ago has met only with minimal 22 success. Interrogatories were propounded to the defendants
23 Carl Crouse and the Washington State Game Commission in August 24 of 1972. No response was made for over four months. Finally, 25 on November 30, 1972, plaintiffs through their liaison counsel 26 filed a motion to compel answers to the interrogatories and 27 for expenses pursuant to Rule 37. On December 8, 1972, the 28 matter came on for hearing and the defendants failing to respond 29 to the interrogatories filed nothing in opposition to the motion.
30 No explanation was offered for their failure to answer, object, 31 or seek additional time to do so. The court ruled from the 32 bench at this hearing that the Department of Game would have

1 until March 8, 1973 in order to answer or object to the interroga-
2 tories. Thus, the defendants were given an additional ninety 3 days to respond -- a total of six and one-half months.

4 On December 30, 1972, plaintiffs Muckleshoot Indian 5 Tribe, Squaxin Island Tribe of Indians, Sauk-Suiattle Indian 6 Tribe, Skokomish Indian Tribe, and Stillaguamish Tribe of Indians
7 filed a motion to reconsider plaintiffs' motion to compel answers
8 to interrogatories and for expenses including attorney's fees 9 on the grounds that the court's order affording the defendants 10 additional time in which to answer or object to the interroga-11 tories and failure to award expenses and attorney's fees was 12 improper without a finding of substantial justification for 13 defendants' failure to respond. The matter was heard on 14 January 5, 1973 and the court denied the motion. This denial 15 was embodied in the court's order of January 9, 1973.

16 The question of defendants' response to the interroga-
17 tories propounded on behalf of the plaintiffs in this case is again 18 before the court. This time the matter is here because of 19 defendants' failure to answer or object to the interrogatories as 20 ordered by the court. The answers filed included many responses 21 which were incomplete or evasive, others stated the word "objection" 22 without any specification of the grounds for objecting. The 23 "answers" were not even made under oath or signed by any of the 24 parties to which they were propounded.

25 This case has languished the Federal District Court
26 since September 1970. Part of the reason for the pitifully
27 slow progress of the matter has been the dilatory approach 28 of the defendants Washington State Game Commission and Carl 29 Crouse. As the lawfulness of these defendants' activities 30 in attempting to impose state fishing regulations upon the 31 plaintiff tribes is challenged, their questionable activities
32 continue. These defendants have little to gain by a rapid ad-

1 judication of the matter, while on the other hand, it is in 2 the plaintiffs' interest to have the case adjudicated as rapidly
3 as possible. Under these circumstances, plaintiffs must prevail
4 upon the court to expedite the case.

5 II. DEFENDANTS SHOULD BE COMPELLED TO ANSWER
6 THOSE INTERROGATORIES WHICH THEY FAILED
7 TO ANSWER.

8 The failure of defendants Carl Crouse and the Washington
9 State Game Commission to answer interrogatories to which answers 10 are sought by this motion fall into four categories. (1) Those 11 to which an unspecified "objection" was made, (2) those to 12 which the objection made is not well taken, (3) those to which 13 the answer was evasive or incomplete and (4) those which im-
14 properly refer the plaintiffs to the records of the Washington 15 State Game Department. To simplify the consideration of this 16 motion, this memorandum deals with interrogatories to which 17 answers are sought by the category into which the failure to 18 answer falls.

19 A. Unspecified "Objections" In Response To An 20 Interrogatory Are Treated As No Answer At All

21 In response to numerous interrogatories defendants 22 offer no basis for objection but merely state the "objections".
23 This is the case with interrogatories 2(b), 2(c), 2(d), 2(e), 24 2(f), 3(b), 3(c), 3(d), 3(e), 8(b), 8(c), 8(d), 8(e), 8(f), 25 8(g), 9(b), 9(c), 9(d), 9(e), 9(f), 18, 19, 20, 21, 29, 30, 26 31, 41, 42, 45, 46, 47, 78, 79, 84, 85, 89, 90, 91, 92, 201,
27 208, 239, 240, and 241.

28 Rule 33 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires 29 that "Each interrogatory shall be answered separately and fully 30 in writing under oath, unless it is objected to, in which event 31 the reasons for objection shall be stated in lieu of an answer."

32 [Emphasis supplied]. It is well settled that since the 1970 amendments to Rule 33 answers and objections are to be served

1 together. Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil 2 §2173 (1970); 4A Moore's Federal Practice ¶33.27 (1972). The 3 failure to specify any grounds for the objection is tantamount 4 to no objection at all and thus no response to the interrogatories.
5 Objections must be specific and be supported by a detailed explan-6 ation of why an interrogatory or class of interrogatories is 7 objectionable. Apco Oil Corp. v. Certified Transp. Inc., 46 F.R.D.
8 428, 430-31 (W.D. Mo. 1969); Erone Corp. v. Kouras Theatres
9 Corp., 22 F.R.D. 494 497-98 (S.D. N.Y. 1958); Pappas v. Lowe's
10 Inc., 13 F.R.D. 471, 474 (M.D. Pa. 1953); Shrader v. Reed, 11
11 F.R.D. 367, 369 (D. Neb. 1951); Mall Tool Co. v. Sterling Varnish
12 Co., 11 F.R.D. 576, 579 (W.D. Pa. 1951); Rupp v. Vock & Weiderhold, 13 Inc., 52 F.R.D. 111 (N.D. Ohio 1971); White v. Beloginis, 53 F.R.D.
14 480 (S.D. N.Y. 1971); Powerlock Systems, Inc. v. Duo-Lok, Inc., 15 54 F.R.D. 578, 579 (E.D. Wisc. 1972).

16 Further, it is has been held that merely stating that 17 the person from whom discovery is sought objects to the interroga-18 tory without specifying the grounds for the objection will 19 be treated as a waiver of objection. Cardox Corp. v. Olin Matheson 20 Chemical Corp., 23 F.R.D. 27, 31 (S.D. Ill. 1958). Consequently, 21 the failure by the Department of Game to make objections in the 22 manner contemplated by Fed. R. Civ. P. 33(a) constitutes a waiver 23 of those objections. The promise of a "separate memorandum" 24 made on page 2 of defendants' answer does not alter this result.
25 If the separate memorandum had been filed within the period 26 allowed for answering, perhaps it would. That time, however, 27 has long since passed and the promise of a later filed objection 28 is unacceptable.

29 Under the circumstances, the court should enter an 30 order requiring the defendants to answer immediately each of 31 the interrogatories which was not answered but to which an unspeci-
32 fied "objection" was made. These interrogatories are listed

1 above. In addition, every other interrogatory the answer to 2 which depended upon or refers to such interrogatories should 3 be answered.

4 B. Defendants Should be Compelled To Answer
5 Interrogatories To Which Improper
6 Objections Were Made

7 Specific objections were made to only two interrogatories.
8 The objection to one of these interrogatories especially is not 9 well taken. Interrogatory 200 asks "Has the Game Department 10 ever concluded, sponsored or utilized any studies or reports 11 which address the question of [nine specific topics]?" In 12 answer, defendants state "Objection. Question too broad and 13 goes to ultimate legal conclusions in suit." First, it no 14 ground for an objection to discovery that it goes to the ultimate 15 legal conclusions in the case. Second, it is difficult to 16 understand how a question about studies and reports could go 17 to the ultimate conclusions in this case.

18 Under Rule 33(b) interrogatories may relate to any 19 matters which can be the subject of discovery as provided in Rule 20 26(b), that is, "any matter, not privileged, which is relevant to 21 the subject matter involved in the pending action...." That a 22 question is "too broad and goes to the ultimate legal conclusions 23 in suit" is not such an objection. Interrogatory 200 relating to 24 the conduct of any studies or report on various questions would 25 seem to be well within the intentions of the draftsman of the 26 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure when they stated that "the 27 existence, description, nature, custody, condition and location 28 of any books, documents, may be discovered." Defendants should 29 be ordered to answer interrogatory 200 without further delay.

1 C. Defendants Should Be Compelled To Answer
2 Interrogatories To Which An Incomplete
3 Or Evasive Answer Was Given

4 Rule 27(a)(3) states "for purposes of this subdivision
5 any evasive or incomplete answers are to be treated as a failure
6 to answer." Responses to numerous interrogatories by the defendants 7 were evasive or incomplete. Each such answer is considered
8 briefly below. For simplicity, the complete interrogatories 9 and purported answers are not set out here in full and reference 10 should be made to defendants' answers in considering this motion.
11 The interrogatories to which incomplete or evasive answers 12 have been made are interrogatories 2(a), 3(a), 4, 8(a), 9(a), 13 10, 43, 49(b), 49(c), 52, 54(a), 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 66, 14 73, 102, 115, 116, 135, 139, 150(a), 160(b), 165, 173, 176, 15 179, 183, 202(b), 209, 217, 224, 236(a), 236(c), 244(b), 246
16 and 259.

17 Interrogatories 2(a), 3(a), 8(a), and 9(a) each ask 18 for an explanation of the Game Department's opinion of the 19 meaning of various parts of treaty language to the treaty Indians
20 and to the non-Indians who treated with the Indians circa 1840-
21 1860. Although in answer to interrogatories 1(a) and 1(b) 22 the defendants indicate they have formed such opinions, their 23 answers to interrogatories 2(a) and 3(a) merely quote from 24 a United States Supreme Court decision in 1968. The language
25 is not directly responsive to the question. Further, the interroga-26 tory seeks the opinion of the Game Department, not of the United 27 States Supreme Court. Presumably, the court was giving its 28 present interpretation of the treaty language, not expressing 29 what the treaty party understood it to mean. If the Game Department 30 has interpreted the treaty phrase, as the persons answering 31 the interrogatories indicate they have done, it is important 32 to discover the meanings which they believe were in the minds of each of the treaty parties. The Supreme Court treatment

1 of the treaty language in 1968 in the context of a specific 2 case is not what is sought. The same problems exist with the 3 answer to interrogatory 4 in which all bases for the Department
4 of Game opinions relating to interrogatories 2, 3, and 10 are 5 indicated as the Puyallup Tribe v. Department of Game case 6 and the decisions cited therein.

7 Interrogatory 43 asks for detailed information about 8 the process followed by the Game Department in issuing regulations 9 and orders governing the taking of fish such as the type of 10 data upon which the regulation order is based, whose recommendations 11 are considered, who makes the final determination, what proceedings 12 are conducted, etc. Instead of answering these questions, 13 the defendants merely cite the section in the Revised Code
14 of Washington which gives the state Game Commission its authority.

15 Interrogatory 49 asks for information about the facts
16 behind the decision of the state to allow fishing on spawning 17 beds and holding pools immediately preceding the spawning period.
18 To the extent that "unlimited information" would be necessary 19 to answer the questions, plaintiffs do not ask the court to 20 order an answer, although it is suggested that "unlimited" 21 information would not be required to answer the questions.
22 However, the answers which are given are incomplete. Specifically, 23 parts b and c are not specific enough. Part b asks upon what 24 data permission to fish on spawning beds and holding pools 25 is granted. The portion of the answer to that section of the 26 question concerning data states "The data relied upon consists 27 of records of observed steelhead beds and major steelhead spawning 28 areas." No data is specified and the answer itself is uncomprehen-29 sible. Part c of the question asks upon whose recommendation 30 the permission is granted. The answer, at best, refers merely 31 to "staff recommendation". In order to complete discovery, 32 including the taking of depositions it will be necessary to

1 know specifically, by name, the individuals who made the recommen-2 dations.

3 Interrogatory 52 asks whether the state has ever permit-
4 ted the taking by hook and line of steelhead from spawning 5 beds or holding pools of other anadromous fish immediately
6 preceding spawning periods for such other fish. The answer
7 is totally unresponsive. It is "No. The Game Department does 8 not possess legal authority to permit the taking of food fish 9 by hook and line." The interrogatory asks about the taking 10 of steelhead not of so called "food fish". Further, no explanation 11 of the apparent definition of "food fish" is given.

12 Interrogatory 54(a) asks for the Game Department descrip-13 tion of the operation of a fish trap. The answer given is 14 "a device which is capable of trapping fish". The answer is 15 inadequate in that the definition would fit nearly any method 16 of fishing such as netting, seining, etc.

17 Interrogatory 55 asks whether the Game Department has 18 ever considered permitting the taking of steelhead by various 19 techniques. A very brief explanation of the types of fishing 20 that have actually been allowed is given but no answer to the 21 question of whether there has been consideration of any other 22 methods is given. The answer seems to be in the affirmative 23 but is not directly stated. If the answer is in the affirmative, 24 it would be necessary for interrogatory 56 and either 57 or 25 58 to be answered as well.

26 The answer to interrogatory 58 begs the question. The 27 question is upon what grounds permission to use various methods
28 of fishing was rejected. Although it is not anywhere stated 29 that permission was in fact rejected, the answer given is "commer-30 cial fishing methods for the taking of game fish have never 31 been authorized by the legislature or the Game Commission."

32 What are "commercial fishing methods"? Even if there was a

1 definition given, the fact that they have never been authorized 2 certainly does not answer upon what grounds permission is rejected.
3 Likewise, the answer to interrogatory 59 which asks the grounds
4 or reasons for failure to consider taking fish by other methods 5 than hook and line merely states "the law does not permit it".
6 And the response to part b of interrogatory 59 fails to specify 7 the facts which support a choice of hook and line methods of 8 fishing and is not responsive. The answer states merely "facts 9 which were before the legislature when, in the exercise of 10 its discretion under the state's police power, it prohibited 11 commercialization of game fish."

12 Interrogatory 60 asks for the specifically identified 13 sources setting forth facts which support a hook and line fishery.
14 Instead of answering the question, the defendants state merely 15 "The Game Department cannot substitute its judgment for that 16 of the legislature of the State of Washington. See: R.C.W.
17 Title 77."

18 Interrogatory 66 asks for the Game Department's "best 19 estimate" of the number of sport fishermen without licenses
20 who lawfully fished during the last ten years. The answer
21 given by the defendants is that no license data is available
22 for such persons. Of course, license data is not available 23 if the persons are not licensed. The question is what is the 24 best estimate of the department as to the number of such persons.

25 Interrogatory 73 asks for information concerning organizations
26 which purport to protect or represent the interests of Washington 27 State sport fishermen. Defendants refer in parts a and b of 28 this question to a list of persons receiving notice of proposed 29 rule making, etc., given in answer to interrogatory 71. This 30 answer is evasive and patently inaccurate. Most of the persons 31 listed are representatives of newspapers and various periodicals.
32 In addition, even counsel for the government and one of the

1 attorneys for plaintiffs is listed. Unless the Game Department
2 does not have the information necessary to answer interrogatory 3 73 and all of its sub-parts, it should be required to do so.
4 Interrogatory 102 asks when artificial production techniques
5 for steelhead began. The question is evasively answered saying 6 that Game has utilized artificial propagation since its formation 7 but that it is "not legally responsible" for the activities
8 of its predecessor." Regardless of "legal responsibility" 9 the question must be answered if the party from whom discovery 10 is sought has the information.

11 Interrogatory 115 asks about the beneficial conservation 12 aspects of taking steelhead by certain fishing techniques.
13 The answer given is "Taking of game fish via commercial gear
14 for commercial purposes is not permitted by state law. Game 15 will not look behind duly enacted state laws." If the defendants 16 do not know the beneficial conservation aspects of such fishing, 17 they should say so. Instead, they are saying, in effect, "we 18 will not tell what the beneficial conservation aspects are."
19 In interrogatory 116, the bad conservation aspects of taking 20 steelhead by the same fishing techniques referred to in interroga-
21 tory 115 are inquired about. The answer given is inadequate 22 and nonresponsive in that it states "the number of steelhead 23 will not sustain commercial fisheries ... " The question simply 24 does not ask about "commercial" fisheries but about fishing
25 techniques. It is telling, however, that the Game Department 26 has purported to answer the question at all in that enumerating 27 any bad aspects of fishing by techniques other than hook and 28 line would tend to "look behind duly enacted state laws."

29 In interrogatory 135, information concerning over-escapement
30 is sought. Although the answer to interrogatory 134 indicates 31 that observation of incidents of over-escapement has been made, 32 the answer given to interrogatory 135 is merely that "no precise

1 data is available." Certainly if there have been observations
2 of the occurrence of over-escapement, questions such as 135(a) 3 as to when the over-escapement occurred can be answered as 4 can the other sub-sections of interrogatory 135. Certainly 5 135(g) asking what regulations permitting treaty Indian fishing 6 were issued for each one having an over-escapement can be answered.
7 If answers cannot be made with precision it will be revealed 8 in the answer to interrogatory 136 which asks for the sources 9 of the information given in 135.

10 The inquiry in interrogatory 139 concerns the opinion
11 of the Department of Game concerning purposes for fishing.
12 Rather than answering the question, defendants dodge the issue 13 and state that the legislature determines the purpose for which 14 game and fish may be taken. The same defendants refer to "commer-15 cial" types and methods of fishing in the answers to other 16 interrogatories but refuse to answer this interrogatory concerning 17 the significance that the Department places on various fishing
18 purposes. If interrogatory 139 is answered, interrogatories 19 140-142 also should be answered.

20 Interrogatory 150(a) asks what procedures have been 21 enacted pursuant to R.C.W. 34.04 relating to making provision 22 for an Indian net fishery for steelhead. Instead of answering 23 the question, the answer "R.C.W. 34.04" is given.

24 In answer to interrogatory 160(b) concerning the process
25 by which the purposes, policies and objectives of the Game 26 Department are determined, the answer "the legislature and 27 staff review" is given. The question is by what process they 28 are determined. The answer is not responsive.

29 Interrogatory 165 asks about the effect on the number 30 of harvestable steelhead by certain specified actions. The 31 answer to all sections of that question is "it would reduce 32 the catch if each of the assumption were true." The answer

1 is simply not responsive to the question which relate to harvestable 2 steelhead; the answer concerns size of catch. Presumably the 3 Game Department is in a position to give its opinion and on 4 each individual sub-section with some specificity.

5 An extremely evasive answer is given to interrogatory
6 173 which inquires about the topographical, chemical and environmen-
7 tal conditions of a body of water necessary to sustain steelhead
8 runs and spawning. The answer given is "the natural conditions
9 that exist in the accessible watersheds of Washington support 10 steelhead populations." Part b of the question asks for the 11 specifically identified sources supporting the answer. The 12 answer to the question given by defendants is "the steelhead 13 catch data referred to in previous answers." The answers to 14 both parts of this question are not helpful at all. Certainly 15 the answers are available within the department and the sources 16 can be specified with little difficulty.

17 Interrogatory 176 asks what types of food on which steelhead
18 subsist. The answer given is "natural aquatic and terrestrial 19 organisms. Data will be made available upon request." The 20 interrogatory, of course, is a request for the information 21 and it is simply not sufficient to state that data will be 22 made available.

23 The answer to interrogatory 179 is unintelligible.
24 The question is in what ways is the statement made in 178 inaccurate.
25 The answer is "there is a relationship between wetted perimeter 26 and spawning and rearing of steelhead in streams." Whether 27 in context of interrogatory 178 or not, the answer makes no 28 sense.

29 Interrogatory 183 asks for specifically identified sources 30 supporting the answer to interrogatory 180. The answer is 31 "escapement data for various watersheds." This answer is evasive 32 and not responsive to the question. It seems calculated to

1 frustrate the purposes of discovery rather than to satisfy 2 them.

3 Interrogatory 202(b) asks whether the State of Washington
4 separates fishery data between commercial and non-commercial 5 take. The defendants do not answer the question but merely 6 state it is unlawful to commercially deal in steelhead."

7 Interrogatory 209 asks which organizations have favored
8 the classification of steelhead as a game fish. The only answer 9 given is "the legislature of the State of Washington since 10 1933." The legislature is not an organization. Are we to 11 assume that no organizations have favored the classification
12 of steelhead as a game fish so far as the Game Department knows?

13 Interrogatory 217 asks for details expanding on the 14 answer to interrogatory 216. Although the answer to 216 indicates 15 that a study was done, the answer to 217 is "no data available."
16 And interrogatory 218 asks for the sources for the answers
17 to the preceding questions but the answer "not applicable" 18 is given.

19 In interrogatory 224 information is sought concerning 20 seizures of Indian fishing equipment or property. The question
21 is purportedly answered by reference to Department files.
22 The question of whether that reference is adequate is treated 23 in part d below. However, even if reference to the files is 24 an adequate way to answer most of the questions, at least parts
25 n and o could not be answered by the files. These sections 26 ask about the authority under which the items are held by the 27 Department and the procedures there are for handling them.

28 The answers to parts a and c of interrogatory 236 are 29 inadequate. Part a asks why steelhead were transported to 30 other states by the Department of Game and the answer is "data 31 is available at the Department of Game headquarters." Although 32 reference to data on file with the Department may be proper

1 under some circumstances, it is not proper when the question
2 asked is "why." Part c asks what money or property was exchanged
3 for transported steelhead. The answer given is "will check
4 to see if data is available." This type of answer loses sight 5 of the fact that these interrogatories are directed at the 6 Director of the Department and all of his agents and employees 7 as well as the Commission itself. Certainly in the files and 8 records of the Department and in the knowledge of the Director 9 or some of his employees this information is present. In any 10 event, it is not proper to state merely that the party answering 11 the interrogatories "will check" to see if he can obtain the 12 information.

13 Interrogatory 244(b) seeks the identity of sources upon 14 which the answer to interrogatory 243 is based. The answer 15 "returns of marked fish in departmental records" is given.
16 This hardly satisfies the request for "specifically identified 17 sources." Of course, the records of the Department contain 18 the sources; it is the identity of them that is sought by the 19 interrogatory and it is only through such identification that 20 discovery of the sources themselves and examination of such 21 sources can be made.

22 Likewise, interrogatory 246 requests information about 23 reports and studies, but the defendants answer simply that 24 they are available at the Department of Game headquarters upon 25 request. Without further information they cannot be requested.

26 Interrogatory 259 asks whether, in the opinion of the 27 Game Department, Indians must utilize the same materials used 28 by their predecessors in order to exercise present day treaty 29 fishing claimed by them. The answer give completely begs the 30 question. It states "Game believes that a court of competent 31 jurisdiction will decide this question of claimed treaty rights 32 and implementation thereof, if any." Plaintiffs already know

1 this. They are asking what the Department of Game's opinion of 2 the subject is.

3 D. Reference To The Files And Records Of The 4 Department of Game In Answer To A Number
5 Of Interrogatories Was Improperly Made.

6 The discovery rules are not designed to put more burden 7 on one party than another and, as stated by Rule 33(c) where "the 8 answer to an interrogatory may be derived or ascertained from the 9 business records of the party upon whom the interrogatory has been 10 served...and the burden of deriving or ascertaining the answer is 11 substantially the same for the party serving the interrogatory as 12 for the party served, it is a sufficient answer to such interroga-13 tory to specify the records from which the answer may be derived 14 or ascertained and to afford the party serving the interrogatory 15 reasonable opportunity to examine...such records...." The use of 16 the option provided by Rule 33(c) has been set out in some detail.

17  The option provided by Rule 33(c) 18 is available only if the burden of 19 deriving or ascertaining the answer 20 is substantially the same for the 21 party serving the interrogatories 22 as for the party served. Whether 23 this is the case will be for the 24 party to whom the interrogatories is 25 directed to resolve in the first 26 instance. If he believes that he is 27 entitled to avail himself of this 28 provision and desires to do so, he 29 will respond to the interrogatory 30 by specifying the records from which 31 the answer may be found... (Emphasis 32 supplied) 8 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure, Civil §2178
at 570 (1970).

26 In the interrogatories propounded by plaintiffs to 27 the defendants Carl Crouse and the Washington State Game Commission 28 there are numerous responses indicating that data sufficient 29 to answer the question are available in the records of the 30 Washington State Department of Game in Olympia. The question
31 is not whether the material exists in the files of the Department
32 of Game, but rather whether it is more burdensome for defendants

1 to produce the information in response to the interrogatories 2 than it is for plaintiffs to travel to Olympia, search the 3 files, and derive the information. Besides making no indication 4 that the burden is the same or greater for the Department of 5 Game than it would be for plaintiffs, there is no indication 6 of exactly where in the records the information can be found 7 or how one would go about obtaining it if they were to travel 8 to Olympia. In a number of answers the identity of specific 9 reports or files is omitted. In an Advisory Committee Note
10 to the 1970 amendment to Rule 33(c) a statement, applicable 11 here, was made: "The interrogating party is protected against 12 abusive use of this provision through the requirement that 13 the burden of ascertaining the answer must be substantially 14 the same for both sides. A respondent may not impose on an 15 interrogating party a mass of records as to which research 16 is feasible only for one familiar with the records." 48 F.R.D.
17 at 524-25.

18 The interrogatory answers in which reference is made 19 to Game Department records includes interrogatories 64, 65, 20 69(a), 74, 75, 76, 81, 82(c), 99, 100, 101, 108, 195, 213, 21 216, 224, 227, 229, 231, 235, 236(a), 236(b), and 246. It
22 is plaintiffs' belief that at least some of the information
23 sought must already be compiled making it considerably easier
24 for defendants to furnish the information from their records 25 than to have them searched by plaintiffs in an attempt to discover 26 the information that is sought. Other references to Department
27 or Commission records is made in instances in which plaintiff 28 has a serious doubt that the information can be found in the 29 records. For instance, inquiries relating to the Commission's 30 dealings with organizations concerned with sports fishing may 31 not all be in the Commission minutes. The dealings of such 32 organizations with the Department (as opposed to the Commission)

1 will probably not be found in any minutes, but may be most 2 completely in the memories and knowledge of Department personnel.
3 (Interrogatory 74-75).

4 III. THE INTERROGATORY ANSWERS ARE ALL
5 INEFFECTUAL IN THAT THEY ARE NOT 6 SIGNED BY THE PARTY ANSWERING THEM.

7 Rule 33(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure
8 states that "each interrogatory shall be answered separately 9 and fully in writing under oath.... The answers are to be 10 signed by the person making them, and the objections signed 11 by the attorney making them." No party to this case has signed 12 the answers. The interrogatories were propounded to defendants 13 Carl Crouse and the Washington State Game Commission, however, 14 they bear the signature of defendants' attorney, Joseph L.
15 Coniff, Jr. It is clear from the face of the Rule that the 16 interrogatories must be answered and signed by the party to 17 whom they are addressed. 8 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice
18 and Procedure, Civil §2172 at 535 (1970); Jones v. Goldstein, 19 41 F.R.D. 271, 274 (D. Md. 1966) and the party to whom the 20 interrogatories are served must sign them even though his attorney 21 has also signed them. Jones v. Goldstein, supra, at 274. Further-22 more, it is improper for the party's attorney to answer the 23 interrogatories. 8 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure, 24 Civil §2172 at 535 (1970). Also, there is no purported oath
25 attesting to the truthfulness of the interrogatory answers.
26 Without this, they are worthless. An unsigned and unverified 27 writing does not qualify as an answer to interrogatories.
28 Cabales v. United States, 51 F.R.D. 498, 499 (S.D. N.Y. 1970).

29 IV. PLAINTIFFS ARE ENTITLED TO EXPENSES
30 INCLUDING ATTORNEYS' FEES

31 Whenever a motion compelling discovery is permitted, 32 Rule 37(a) (4) requires that:

1  ... the court shall, after opportunity
2 for hearing, require the party or 3 deponent whose conduct necessitated
4 the motion or the party or attorney
5 advising such conduct or both of them
6 to pay the moving party the reasonable 7 expenses incurred in obtaining the 8 order including attorneys' fees, unless 9 the court finds that the opposition
10 to the motion was substantially justified 11 and that other circumstances make an 12 award of expenses unjust.

13 In this case, if the court grants plaintiffs' motion 14 to compel answers to the unanswered interrogatories or those 15 which are not properly and completely answered, it should make 16 an award of the expenses incurred in obtaining the order including 17 attorneys' fees. Parrett v. Ford Motor Co., 52 F.R.D. 120
18 (W.D. Mo. 1969).

19 A second basis for obtaining expenses and attorneys'
20 fees is found in Rule 37(b) (2) which provides for sanctions 21 against the party who violates the court order to answer interroga-22 tories. In this case, the court ordered responses to be made
23 to interrogatories propounded to defendants by March 8, 1973, 24 as indicated above. Many of the interrogatories simply were 25 not responded to. Although there may be some debate about 26 the type of answer given to many of the interrogatories, there 27 can be no debate about the total failure of the defendants 28 to respond to several of the interrogatories, such as those 29 which they answered with the word "objection." Thus, it is 30 clear that the court's order requiring discovery is subject
31 to the sanctions provided in Rule 37(b) (2). These sanctions 32 include rather drastic measures going to the substance of the 33 case.¹

34 ¹ The sanctions provided by Rule 37(b) (2) are:

35 (A) An order that the matters regarding which the order was 36 made or any other designated facts shall be taken to be 37 (Footnote continued next page)

1 In lieu of the rather sweeping measures which the court
2 may take, or in additon to them, the court is bound to "require 3 the party failing to obey or the attorney advising him or both 4 to pay the reasonable expenses including attorney's fees, caused 5 by the failure unless the court finds that the failure was sub-6 stantially justified or that other circumstances make an award 7 of expenses unjust." R. De. Bovard & Cie v. S.S. Ionic Coast, 8 46 F.R.D. 1 (S.D. Texas 1969); Austin Theatre, Inc. v. Warner
9 Bros. Pictures, Inc., 22 F.R.D. 302, 304 (S.D. N.Y. 1958).

10 Finally, sanctions are available under Rule 37(d) which 11 is applicable when a party fails to respond to discovery.

12 Again, the failure to answer or properly object to many of 13 the interrogatories in this case is a basis for imposing the 14 sanctions under Rule 37(d). The Rule requires the court to 15 order "the party failing to act or the attorney advising him 16 or both to pay the reasonable expenses, including attorneys'
17 fees, caused by the failure, unless the court finds the failure

18
19 ¹(footnote continued)

20 established for the purposes of the action in accordance 21 with the claim of the party obtaining the order;

22 (B) An order refusing to allow the disobedient party to support 23 or oppose designated claims or defenses, or prohibiting 24 him from introducing designated matters in evidence;

25 (C) An order striking out pleadings or parts thereof, or stay-26 ing further proceedings until the order is obeyed, or 27 dismissing the action or proceeding or any part thereof,
28 or rendering a judgment by default against the disobedient
29 party;

30 (D) In lieu of any of the foregoing orders or in addition there-31 to, an order treating as a contempt of court the failure to 32 obey any orders except an order to submit to a physical or 33 mental examination;

34 (E) Where a party has failed to comply with an order under 35 Rule 35(a) requiring him to produce another for examination, 36 such orders as are listed in paragraphs (A), (B), and (C) of 37 this subdivision, unless the party failing to comply shows 38 that he is unable to produce such person for examination.

1 was substantially justified or that other circumstances make 2 an award of expenses unjust." Allied Artists Pictures Corp.
3 v. Giroux, 50 F.R.D. 151 (S.D. N.Y. 1970).

4 Under any of the provisions of Rule 37 allowing expenses 5 and attorneys' fees plaintiffs are entitled to an order requiring 6 defendants Carl Crouse of the Washington State Game Commission
7 or the attorney advising them or all of them to pay substantial 8 expenses including the attorneys' fees which have been incurred 9 and as a result of this failure.

10 CONCLUSION

11 This court should order defendants Carl Crouse and 12 the Washington State Game Commission to answer all interrogatories 13 as specified above which have not been answered, which have 14 been improperly objected to, or which have been inadequately or 15 evasively answered. Further, an award of expenses including 16 attorneys' fees must be made.
