official fiat. Rules and regulations so numerous that none may know them, and so onerous as to produce internal eruption in other times.

The foregoing is preliminary to the statement that the members of the bar may do no greater service to their country than to educate themselves and others to the fundamentals of free government, to the end that when there is a cessation in this global, physical combat, we may return unto the paths of peace and again walk as free men.

It must be our duty to see to it that tyrannies of martial laws do not become so interwoven into the fabric of our civil law that a disastrous civil combat may be the price to be paid for reestablishing government by the people.

It has been said of old: "For what shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Mark 8:36. The same may be said of a nation: "For what shall it profit the United States to win a global war and lose its own soul?"

May that soul be free from personal government! In a personal government, there is no recognized place for a bar association and no use for an independent lawyer.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON STANDARDS FOR TITLE OPINIONS

The Committee on Standards of the Real Property Section of the American Bar Association has for several years offered encouragement to the various State Bar Associations in promoting standardization and agreement among their members as to the types of defects which are sufficiently immaterial to be disregarded in giving opinions of title. The work has gone forward in a great many states and in most cases outstanding results are being obtained. This Committee now exists in this state for the first time.

Most of us are fully aware of the curse attending the over-meticulous examination of titles. See 17 Nebraska Law Bulletin 4; "The Over-Meticulous Title Examiner as a Nuisance to the Public and to the Profession." Many of us are guilty ourselves—partly because up to the present there has been no satisfactory way of determining "when a defect is not a defect." A client goes to one attorney and obtains an opinion of title thinking he can rest secure that he has bought property with a marketable title. When he goes to sell, however, the purchaser has the abstract examined by a different attorney who says that a foreclosure sale was held on improper notice back in 1910. What can the first client reasonably think? Either his confidence in his lawyer is shaken or his regard for the profession as a whole is lessened. Not infrequently it is even suggested by the seller that the second examining attorney is attempting to promote a quiet title action. The probability is that the objection raised by the second lawyer is not a real defect, and in most cases the objection was made solely because the second examiner is afraid that the next attorney who examines will also raise the point, thus challenging his opinion. The
