ADDRESS BY JUDGE ROBERT J. WILLIS

President of the Superior Court Judges' Association

You might be interested in some of the things we are doing or attempting to accomplish within the Superior Court Judges' Association. Only one of our seven standing committees, that on judges' retirement, deals exclusively with matters that are peculiarly of interest to the judges themselves. The other committees—those on rules, juvenile delinquency, public institutions, improvement of the administration of justice, uniformity of dignity and procedure, and legislation—are concerned with, as their names imply, many different subjects of vital importance to the state and of interest to its citizens.

Our association, like yours, is interested in supporting the reasonable requests for appropriations that come from the several correctional and custodial institutions of the state so that they all will be enabled to do their work more efficiently and thus perform a better service for those unfortunate individuals, both adult and juvenile, who fall within their protective care.
